Diversity in cybersecurity: a crucial issue for the sustainability of the industry

All studies show this: gender diversity enables organisations to perform better. However, women are underrepresented in the digital sector, and more particularly in cybersecurity. So, girls and ladies, dare to enter this rapidly expanding sector, which needs your skills in terms of know-how and interpersonal skills. I can never repeat it enough: "Who dares wins!"

DIGITAL SOVEREIGNTY

The Runet and the rest of the world

With the war raging between Ukraine and Russia since 24 February, the cyber domain has become the focus of attention.

It has turned into a theatre of conflict, where cyberattacks on the logical and semantic layers respond to one another.

SECURITY & STABILITY IN CYBERSPACE

Should we prepare for an escalation of the Ukrainian conflict?

Organisations need to remain on high alert for the consequences of a cyber spillover from the crisis in Ukraine. The use of unconventional strategies and tactics on Ukrainian soil is not new. And NotPetya reminds us that digital boundaries are thin.

CYBER CRIMINALITY

What are the changes in how local authorities consider cybersecurity?

The health crisis has accelerated the implementation of digital services offered by local authorities to citizens. Their use is only possible in an environment of trust, which is guaranteed by security. Unfortunately, the frequent cyberattacks suffered by local authorities over the last two years have shown weaknesses in cybersecurity measures.

What if... the cyberattacks on European oil ports are a hybrid declaration of war?

Last February 2022, oil ports in Rotterdam, Antwerp and Ghent became the target of several cyberattacks that endanger crucial maritime transport hubs in Europe.

Multiple petrochemical facilities had to halt their logistical processes, which caused enormous delays in the supply chain of specifically oil.

Second edition of the eCPF: the European revolution is expected!

We are all interdependent! This reality of our environment obviously applies to e-commerce, which has changed our daily relationship with consumption. E-commerce in France is worth €129 billion—an increase of 15.1% compared to 2020. For its 2nd edition, the e-Consumer Protection Forum (eCPF) will build on its fundamentals, mobilise for a positive customer experience with safe and authentic products, and commit itself to ensuring that each actor in the ecosystem has its place. Platforms, manufacturers, right holders, authorities, and solution providers all contribute to a trusted e-commerce environment for the benefit of consumers. See you on 7 June 2022 at the FIC!

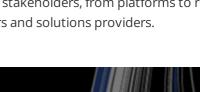

First Trust & Safety Forum: a cohesive space open to all stakeholders

The inaugural edition of the Trust & Safety Forum (T&SF) in Lille, France, on 7 June 2022, takes place at a unique moment, unprecedented in the last two decades, with a wave of new regulations under preparation. With 100.000 professionals worldwide, 20.000 companies soon impacted by the upcoming Digital Services Act, Trust & Safety thrives to become a standard discipline within the broad family of security. The Trust & Safety Forum (T&SF) offers a cohesive space open to all stakeholders, from platforms to regulators, inclusive of trusted flaggers and solutions providers. More information here.
